Problem Four copies of Database Xcessory (DBX) were purchased for FOS, but the local installation (on "jiminy" in /data/ics/bin) was never put on a CCR or discussed. Other groups now want access to the current four copies before an additional six are procured, so it is necessary to get the software automounted and a portion of the licenses floated and accessible from the main license servers.
Proposed Solution I am told that the DBX licenses we bought include Builder's Xcessory (BX) and the DataBase Pak. I therefore assume that these will be separate from our current 17 BX licenses; that is they will be a separate installation location and a separate FEATURE line to FLEXlm. To leave FOS one copy and not disturb the current working configuration: the software, license server and one license will be left on "jiminy" (Carl Lloyd's Sun). Suggested changes will be to: 1) Install the software in an automounted location; /tools/dbx10 is suggested (to indicate version 1.0) 2) Install three of the 4 existing licenses on the main FLEXlm license servers (eos, htsc and neptune) When the additional 6 licenses come in and the new installation is known to work, the jiminy installation should be removed and all 10 licenses floated from the main servers, but that will be a separate CCR at a later date.
